Status of the Eastern Iowa Observatory & Learning Center

Members of RCRV have played a leading role during three years of planning, design, fund raising, and implementation of the Eastern Iowa Observatory & Learning Center (EIOLC) which is moving toward on-schedule completion in June of this year. Greg Frohner, Forrest Tomes, Bunnie Tomes, Vern Jackson, and John Leeson serve on the EIOLC project committee, and many members of RCRV have provided financial or construction support to this project.

The $700,000 capital project is a joint effort by Cedar Amateur Astronomers (CAA) and Linn County Conservation (LCC) to create a family friendly facility to aid in the promotion of astronomy and related sciences through presentations and observing sessions. The EIOLC was initiated in 2004 following the gift to CAA of a 24" diameter, 4,000 pound Research Grade telescope, and funding from Rockwell Collins to create a Robotic telescope. These instruments will be housed in separate domes that are attached to the Main building.

The Main building of the EIOLC is designed to accommodate approximately 100 people for presentations, and capacity can be expanded into an adjacent study room for 30 more people if required. The EIOLC is located several miles Southeast of Cedar Rapids at 1365 Ivanhoe Road on property that is part of the Palisades Dows Botanical Preserve which is owned and maintained by Linn County.

Information regarding scheduled events at the EIOLC can be acquired by visiting the CAA website at Cedar-Astronomers.org. The first Public Night presentation at the EIOLC is scheduled for July 14, 2007. There is no admission fee and everyone is welcome.♦

Iowa Traveler

RCRV was the featured subject on the Cary J. Hahn Iowa Traveler show on KGAN Channel 2 television in February. The show featured a class for students with handicaps at Linn Mar

High School using our assistive technology devices. Ann Griffin from the Grant Wood AEA, Linn Mar Staff and several RCRV members participated. ♦

Four Oaks Bridge

Four Oaks is headquartered in Cedar Rapids and is one of the largest private, not-for-profit child welfare/juvenile justice organizations in the state serving all 99 counties from 12 Iowa cities.

Jim Shipman, a local attorney and Four Oaks board member, gave a presentation to the RCRV board of directors at our January meeting. He presented information about Four Oaks with specific emphasis on their Bridge Intergenerational Center.

Old Time Radio Show at the Four Oaks Bridge.

The mission of the Four Oaks Bridge is to bring together people of all ages, races and economic backgrounds in an environment of learning whereby youth, seniors and working adults can connect and contribute through the arts, technology, theater and other learning opportunities. Over 80 children currently participate in the various programs at the Bridge Dummermuth Intergenerational Center at 2100 1st Avenues NE.

RCRV has traditionally had a close working relationship with the Bridge and several of our members have been active participants on their advisory board and volunteering for their programs ranging from teaching astronomy to acting in Old Time Radio shows.

The Bridge is always in need of additional assistance, innovation and ideas and would welcome additional RCRV volunteers. If you would like to participate in this rewarding experience call the center at 247-4834. ♦

Computer Learning Opportunity

The Rockwell Collins REACT Center at 927 North Compton Drive in Hiawatha is holding basic computer literacy classes on Saturday mornings from 9 to 11 a.m. The classes are individually tailored and progress along with the participant's ability. Advance classes are being planned to follow.

If you are interested in this opportunity please contact Barb at the center 319-393-9632. ♦

Drivers Needed for Disabled Veterans

Volunteer drivers are needed to help provide transportation to shuttle disabled (but ambulatory) Veterans to and from their places of residence in Cedar Rapids and the Veterans Administration Hospital in Iowa City for medical assistance. Currently an average of seven veterans from the Cedar Rapids area is transported each day.

The DAV (Disabled American Veterans) association provides nine-passenger vans to transport veterans from Eastern Iowa and Western Illinois to Iowa City.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help out in this most worthwhile venture should contact Dan Chadwick for additional details at 396-1287 or email at bcddc@aol.com. ♦
